"Those Naughty Girls."

The Lexington Democrat prints the following funny story about the K. U. boys who will take part in the presentation of "Old King Cole" at the Paris Opera House Friday night:

"Oh! I wouldn't be a girl, would you? Poor things; they are always causing trouble, one way or the other, and the men will be more convinced than ever now than even just 'tending like you are a girl is trouble; yes—and fun too—enough for them."

But to get to the story. Don't you know the "Old King Cole" Company went yesterday morning to Muller's photograph gallery to have their pictures taken and created the sensation of the day. Several of the principals who take parts of pretty princesses—Mr. Foxhall Daingerfield, Mr. W. R. D. Winters and the lovely chorus girls; Mr. Harry Swan, Mr. George Roche, Mr. Thomas Scott, Mr. George Montgomery, Mr. T. D. Look and Mr. Jesse Simpson in their dainty decollete gowns, sat near the window awaiting their turn to pose. To while away the time they smoked cigarettes—as boys will, you know, and, oh, my! the consternation that they caused! All the naughty men were ogling them and throwing kisses surreptitiously and the good women were well, shocked doesn't half express it. One of them more interested in the city's morals than the rest fled her to the Mayor's office to have an injunction out against such awful behavior, but they do say that His Honor said he was very sure "the pretty things couldn't mean no harm," and he'd rather not interfere with the picture gallery. The boys enjoyed the joke, you may be sure, to the fullest, and fished very boldly with all the college boys across the street, with business men and any others that came their way. They are a pretty lot, these princesses and chorus girls.

Gave a Cold Check.

Henry W. Jansen, alias Henry Baker, of this city was arrested Friday afternoon in Lexington, on a charge of obtaining money under false pretenses. Jansen went to the saloon of G. W. Adams and introduced himself as a horseman, giving his name as Henry Baker. After taking several drunks he asked for a blank check on the First National Bank. Mr. Adams did not have one on the First National, but gave him one on the City National. This was changed and Jansen, alias Baker, filled it in for $5 and signed Henry Baker. Mr. Adams cashed it.

Saturday the check was returned to Mr. Adams marked "no funds;" the man had never had any account at the bank. The police were notified and Jansen was captured. He was given a hearing before Squire Payne later and in default of $300 surety he was sent to jail. He claims he was drunk and did not know what he was doing when he wrote the check.

Jansen is a gardener and has been in police court here several times, once for mistreating his family.

EDUCATIONAL AFFAIRS

Of Kentucky To Be Well Displayed at the Fair.

PROFESSOR BROWNELL IN CHARGE.

Committee of Prominent Educators Arranging For Collection and Installation of Exhibits—Much Interest Being Taken In School Teachers' Contest.

The display Kentucky is to make in the Educational building at the World's Fair next year will open the eyes of educators everywhere to Kentucky's possibilities in educational affairs. The Kentucky Exhibit association has placed at the head of its educational exhibit committee Professor H. G. Brownell, principal of the Manual Training High School of Louisville, and he has appointed 20 of the state's best known educators as his associates on the committee. They are as follows: Professor H. V. McChesney, Frankfort; Professor R. P. Haleck, Louisville; Professor W. H. Bartholomew, Louisville; Professor F. Paul Anderson, Lexington; Dr. Chase Palmer, Danville; President William Dinwiddie, Jackson; Dr. W. G. Frost, Berea; Dr. B. E. Huntoon, Louisville; Dr. E. Y. Mullins, Louisville; Dr. Arthur Yager, Georgetown; Superintendent M. A. Cassidy, Lexington; Superintendent S. L. Frogge, Frankfort; Professor C. J. Crabb, Ashland; Professor McHenry Rhodes, Owensboro; Professor T. S. Alley, Bellevue; Professor C. C. Cherry, Bowling Green; Professor Enos Spencer, Louisville; Miss Pattie S. Hill, Louisville; Mrs. Emily E. Bracken, Louisville, and Mrs. M. B. Tucker, Louisville.

The association has made application for 2,500 square feet of space in the Palace of Education at the Fair and it is reasonably certain that it will secure this amount. Professor Brownell recently made a trip to St. Louis to confer with Mr. Howard J. Rogers, chief of the Department of Education, relative to Kentucky's exhibit in his department, and had a very satisfactory interview. Mr. Rogers promising Professor Brownell that Kentucky's educational exhibit would be well taken care of. Professor Brownell since his appointment has devoted much time to the study of collecting and installing the Kentucky educational display and has decided to classify it under eight groups, as follows: Elementary, secondary, higher, fine arts, agricultural, commerce and industry, defectives and text-books and furniture. There will be several classes in these groups, showing school management, organization, statistics, pictures and plans of buildings, methods of instruction, results obtained and pupils' and students' work. Another important factor will be the training of teachers. Good exhibits are desired by Professor Brownell and his committee from the graded schools and rural schools of the state, and also illustrating the work of the mountain schools. It is his hope that every educator in the state will help make the Kentucky display one of the most successful in the Educational building at the fair.

H. G. BROWNELL,
Chairman Educational Exhibit Committee, Louisville.

It is believed that the deep interest to be aroused by the school teachers' popularity contest, inaugurated two weeks ago by the Kentucky Exhibit association, will greatly increase interest in the educational exhibit. Educators in every part of the state are awake to the importance of having a good display at St. Louis, and at the same time are lending their efforts to making a success of the contest whereby 120 of the most popular teachers of the state will be given free trips to the World's fair. Every educator in Kentucky is eligible to election in this contest, members of the educational committee alone excepted. They are barred for the reason that the counting of the votes is to be conducted under their supervision.

FINE AGRICULTURAL DISPLAYS.
No man is more capable for the position of chairman of an agricultural exhibit committee than is Colonel Ion B. Nall, the state commissioner of agriculture. Colonel Nall is at the head of the Kentucky Exhibit Association's committee on agriculture and horticulture exhibits and is now working out the details of the display to be made by the state in these two departments. He has associated with him a committee thoroughly versed in everything agricultural, and in addition to this has an army of workers throughout the state, having appointed subcommittees in every county of the state.

"MINED IN KENTUCKY."

This Placard Will Become Familiar at World's Fair.

GRAND DISPLAY OF OUR RESOURCES

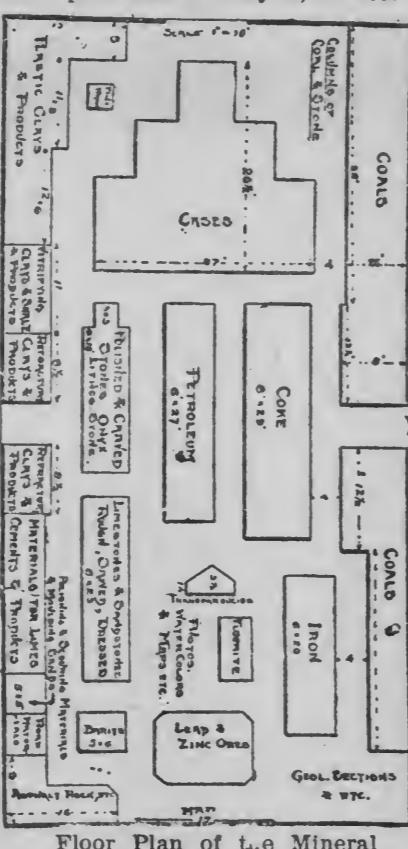

Six Thousand Square Feet of Space Secured For Kentucky's Mineral Exhibit In the Mines and Metallurgy Building at the Exposition.

The floor plan of Kentucky's mineral exhibit, to be installed in the Mines and Metallurgy building at the exposition in St. Louis next year, is made public this week by the Kentucky Exhibit association. It was drawn by Professor C. J. Norwood, state inspector of mines, who is chief counselor to the mineral exhibit committee of the association, and has been approved by the chairman of the committee, former Mayor Chas. P. Weaver of Louisville. It has been conceded by everyone with the slightest knowledge of Kentucky's mineral resources that the Blue Grass state is wealthier in this regard probably than any other commonwealth in the Union. This is a fact that is to be brought prominently to the attention of thousands and thousands of visitors at the exposition. A study of the floor plan will show that every variety of mineral is to be given a good display. Chairman Weaver has surrounded himself with expert committees on these minerals and Kentuckians may rest assured that the best exhibit ever made of her wealth beneath the surface will be found at the St. Louis fair. The floor plan shows only 5,000 feet of space. In addition to this the association has secured 1,000 square feet to be used in other parts of the Mines and Metallurgy building, and herein will be installed duplicate exhibits of coal, crude oil, clays, asphalt, etc.

C. J. NORWOOD,
Chief Counselor to Mineral Exhibit Committee, Lexington.

ONE EXHIBIT TO COST $10,000.

Kentucky will have the distinction of installing one of the largest refrigerating machines to be shown at the World's fair. Mr. Gardner T. Voorhees, the refrigerating engineer and expert in charge of the refrigerating department at the exposition, was in Louisville a short time ago and invited the Henry Vogt Machine company to put in a 200-ton refrigerating machine at the fair. The invitation was accepted and a contract signed to that effect. A machine of 200 tons refrigerating capacity is about equivalent to a machine that will make 100 tons of ice each 24 hours. The Henry Vogt Machine company will expend $10,000 in making this exhibit.

DEEP INTEREST MANIFESTED.

The failure of the Kentucky legislature to make an appropriation at its last session left to the citizens of the state only one chance to be properly represented at the St. Louis world's fair next year. This opportunity is being taken advantage of. The Kentucky Exhibit association was formed to correct, in as great a measure as possible, the mistake made by the general assembly, and with the united effort of the citizens of the commonwealth, it will succeed. There is no denying the fact that the movement inaugurated by the association has already stirred up more interest throughout the state than would have come from an appropriation in many times the period devoted to the work by this organization.

A THREATENING EVIL.

The Seats of Too Many Senators Are Obtained by Corrupt Practices.

It is the popular habit to attack the senate of the United States with general condemnation. This is misleading, says a writer in Century. An honest man, who knows the senate intimately in all its workings, the other day said of it that any such sweeping attack had the inexactness of caricature, the fact being that the senate contains a group of well-equipped and disinterested public men who have become "experts" in governmental questions, and who get through in the course of the year "an immense amount of useful public business."

There is much truth in this. But the other thing is true also, that state after state, and some of our oldest states, are represented by men whom it is a loss of reputation to associate with intimately; who got their seats by "corrupt practices" of one kind or another; and whose presence in the senate is an advertisement of the low tone of the state "machines" and legislatures, through whose corrupt management, or virtual purchase, they obtained their "honorable" seats. And a low-toned senator or representative means, as a rule, a low class of federal appointments in the states or districts thus represented; for it is a part of the miserable situation that every means is taken to deceive the appointing powers as to the real character of those recommended by corruptionists to office.

Unexpected frankness now and then gives a special zest to the humor of a situation in congress. When "Gabe" Bouck was the representative from the Oshkosh district of Wisconsin, a pension bill came before the house, to his great vexation of spirit; for, while his personal convictions were directly opposed to it, his political interests were strong enough to whip him into line. On the day the bill came up for final disposal a fellow member met Bouck in the space behind the last row of seats, walking back and forth and gesticulating excitedly, bringing his clenched right fist down into the hollow of his left hand, to the accompaniment of expletives which would hardly look well in print, writes Francis E. Leupp in "Some Humors of Congress."

"What's the trouble, Gabe?" inquired his friend. "Why all this excitement?"

"Trouble?" snorted the irate lawmaker. "Trouble enough! That pension bill is up, and all the cowardly nincompoops in the house are going to vote for it. It's sure to pass—sure to pass."

"But why don't you get the floor and speak against it—try to stop it?" suggested the other.

"Try to stop it?" echoed Bouck. "Try to stop it? Why, I'm one of the cowardly nincompoops myself!"

DOMESTICATED LEOPARDS.

South African Region Where the Natives Tame the Animals and Make Use of Them.

Upogoro, in German East Africa, says The Sphere, has only recently come into prominence. The whole country is mountainous in character, and several peaks attain an altitude of 4,500 feet.

One of the drawbacks of the country is the presence in large numbers of wild animals, chief among which is the leopard. Although sparing the Europeans, yet he does not fear to burst into the native huts and seize any human being who may be within reach. Should he not succeed in effecting an entrance, he lies in wait until some unfortunate native ventures out.

If there is a goat pen or a chicken roost, he satisfied himself there, but failing this fears not to attack the inhabitants. Once satisfied, he retires to his lair, and, being tracked, often falls a prey to the European rifle.

Young leopards are often caught by the natives, and are bartered for money or articles of clothing. These are sometimes tamed, and though not so trustworthy as the dog, yet throw off their wild nature, and are utilized for practical purposes.

They are used for drawing light carts, and it is by no means uncommon to see them harnessed to the mountain guns, which they pull along with the utmost facility.

MISSSED GREAT FORTUNE.

South African Colonist Was Five Minutes Too Late to Become Owner of De Beers Mines.

F. W. Salzman, the oldest South African colonist, missed by about five minutes the acquisition of a fortune of $35,000,000—the great De Beers diamond fields, now one of the richest mines in the world, says Stray Stories.

He was surveying Griqualand when the original owner of the famous farm, W. De Beers, held it. It was then about as barren and hopeless-looking a tract as any in Africa, and De Beers, with endless hard work from morning till night, and very little help, had all he could do to scrape a living out of the place. There was hardly any water, and grass was scarce and poor; the total profits only amounted to a pound or two per month. When Mr. Salzman had completed his survey De Beers, tired of profitless toil on his patch of sunburnt desert, offered to let him have the farm in exchange for a waistcoat.

Mr. Salzman refused at first, and then said he would think about it. He went to Cape Town later on, where he heard strange rumors of lucky finds in the district he had left.

The next time he trekked that way he went 60 miles out of his road to see De Beers and clinch the bargain offered. He found a stranger's wagon and oxen "outspanned" at the farm when he arrived.

Its owner had come only a few minutes before and had already made an offer for the farm which was accepted.

PLUTOCRACY OF PITTSBURG.

Purse-Proud Younger Generation Forget What Their Fathers Might Have Been.

Pride is a feature of the younger generation of Pittsburghers of wealth. Things of which some of them think they cannot be proud—such as the way in which their hard-working fathers got their start in life—they try to forget. That the fathers are sometimes proud of this same lowly start is responsible for this incident:

"Do you know, young man, that I once was very envious of your father?" said one of the steel kings to the son of a man whose wealth, while great, could be written with one less figure, says a writer in the New York Tribune.

"And when was that?" asked the young man, pleased to think that there had ever been a time when the "king" envied his father.

"It was this way," returned the old man. "I was working in a ditch for $1.50 a day."

"I didn't know you started that way," interrupted the youth.

"That's the way. I was working in this ditch for $1.50 a day, and your father was working in the same ditch. He got $1.75 because he was stronger, and I envied him the extra quarter."

LIGHTNING STRIKES UP.

The Earth Becomes Charged with Negative Current Which Rushes Upward.

The cause of death by lightning is the sudden absorption of the electric current. When a thundercloud, which is highly charged with positive electric current, hangs over any certain place, the earth beneath it becomes abnormally charged with the negative electric current, and a man, animal or other object standing or lying directly beneath also partakes of the last mentioned influence, says a scientific authority. If, while the man, animal or other object is in this condition, a discharge takes place from the cloud above, the restoration of the equilibrium will be sudden and violent, or, in language that we can all understand, the negative current from the earth will rush up to join the positive cloud current, and in passing through the object which separates the two currents, if it be an animate thing, will do so with such force as to almost invariably produce instant death.

A person is really "struck" by the ground current, and not by the forked fury from above.

By a variety of employments, ranging from teaching and technical work to sweeping rooms and washing dishes, 164 Columbia university students earned in three months last year $15,000—an average of about $90 for each man. One student earned more than $100 a week during the three months by advanced tutoring, and another gained $1,050 during the 12 weeks. Several of the students earned $300 each. Of the women students 17 gained $2,434.68, an average of $143, or $50 above the men's average.

Facts from Birth Statistics. Recently compiled statistics show that the proportion of twins born as compared with other infants is one in eighty births. Of triplets there is only one instance in 6,400, and quadruplets are as one to 512,000; while the chances of a quintuplet are even more remote, the ratio being one in 40,980,000 births. A case is known of a woman who presented her husband with seven successive triplets.Voluntary Crop Observers. The agricultural department has 107,000 voluntary crop observers. Cotton is reported on seven times a year, wheat eight times, corn and oats each six times.

MACHINES SEEM TO THINK.

Marvelous Effectiveness of the Dredges Used in the Great Lakes.

The home of the dipper dredge is on the great lakes. There it flourished, and in the smaller sizes and in non-tidal fresh water at 20 feet depth was marvelously efficient. A good wooden dredge of ten years ago, which cost, say, $30,000, would do 1,500 or 2,000 cubic yards per ten hours, with a crew of six men, on three tons of coal, says the Engineering Magazine.

It could lift its spuds, move up and reset again in 90 seconds. It stands alone like a table on its legs, with no moorings to obstruct navigation. By means of its dipper on the bottom it can move itself about crab-fashion in any direction, and by the same means can push the barges about which it is loading. It can maneuver itself in any direction, load scows, dig foundations, pull piles, lay concrete blocks, deposit back-filling, lift boulders, raise wrecks, dredge hard or soft material, and do nearly everything but vote. Its great simplicity made it light in repairs. With tools like these, and suitable for their work, the marvel is not that American contractors do not use the big and costly European ladder dredges, but that these useful American tools do not find a wider recognition in Europe and abroad.

TUNNEL HELPS DIG ITSELF.

Great Bore Under the Alps Discharges Water Enough to Furnish Drill Power.

In the new Simplon tunnel under the Alps, which will be by far the greatest tunnel in the world, having a length of 14 miles, and which, it is now reported, will be completed in July, 1905, the quantity of water flowing out of the southern end, from the many veins encountered in the heart of the mountain, amounts to 15,000 gallons per minute, and furnishes sufficient power to compress the air by which the drills are worked, and to refrigerate the tunnel. The necessity of refrigeration may be judged from the fact that the heat in the deeper parts of the tunnel rises as high as 140 degrees Fahrenheit when not artificially reduced, says the Scientific American. Life would be impossible in the tunnel, where 4,000 workmen labor, if a successful system of refrigeration had not been devised. When a continuous hole through the mountain has been made, then the temperature can more easily be kept down. Two-thirds of the work was completed last July, and the greatest obstacles have now been overcome.

ON MAY 6TH. — Extensive preparations for the entertainment of the six hundred delegates to the Third District Republican Railroad Convention, which will be held here on May 6th, are being made. The statement that the convention is to be held in the opera house is a mistake, as the old Christian Church building has been rented for that purpose. This will be the first Railroad Convention that Paris has ever entertained, and the citizens are determined to make it a notable event. This convention will be worth a good deal to Paris in a financial way, and we should not look at it from a political standpoint, but as a business proposition.

PERSONAL MENTION

Willie Ferguson, the 12-year-old son of Edward C. Ferguson, a painter, who resides on Convent Heights, was drowned Sunday in a cistern in the cellar of the Methodist Church.

The lad left home about 9 o'clock Sunday morning with his 6-year-old sister, Pattie, to attend Sunday school. The children arrived at the church and the little girl entered the class-room, but the boy left for Rassenfoss' confectionery, where he purchased 4 cents' worth of caramels, which he received with a penny in change, for the nickel his father had given him. This was the last seen of the lad alive.

It is supposed the boy entered the basement to eat the candy undisturbed, and in some way fell into the cistern and could not get out.

Riley Small, colored, sexton of the church, says he visited the cistern at an early hour, and removing the iron grating (similar to public sewer gratings,) drew some water to freshen the plants and cut flowers in the church auditorium. He says he carefully replaced the grating over the cistern, which has very small opening. The sexton did not visit the cistern till again at 7 p. m., after more water for the flowers, when he noticed the grating pushed aside and saw a boy's cap lying on the ground. He reported the find to Mr. Fletcher Mann, who sounded the water, and found the child's body.

The little fellow was a bright child, and a favorite with his playmates. The sympathy of the entire community goes out to the heart-broken parents.

The body was embalmed and removed to the sad home. No services were held at the church Sunday night.

No blame is attached to any one for the accident as the cistern is amply protected.

The funeral will be held at the residence this morning at 9:30 o'clock and the pall-bearers will be Sunday school classmate of the little boy.

Dr. Wm. Kenney, coroner, viewed the body and returned a verdict that the child fell into the cistern while playing and was drowned and that there were no eye-witnesses.

D. M. Dodge's Will Probated.

The will of David M. Dodge was yesterday probated.

The document is quite lengthy and bears date of Nov. 1, 1900, and has a codicil attached Feb. 20, 1903.

The will disposes of 330 acres of fine Bourbon land.

James L. and Victor Dodge are appointed executors of the will.

Shot in The Shoulder.

Harry Holt, son of Ben Holt, while carelessly handling a pistol stood at his home shot himself in the shoulder, inflicting a slight flesh wound. Holt was able to be on the street yesterday.

FOR TEN DAYS. — Call at the 8th Street Greenhouse and see my bargain table. In the next ten days any plant on it goes for ten cents for cash.
(2t) MISS EMILY HOLLIDAY.

Large Business.

The postal receipts at the Paris post office for the year ending March 31, were over $11,000, which is $1,000 more than is required by the postal law to entitle Paris to free city delivery. For the same period the money order department took in over $27,000. This is a fine showing and a big business for this office.

If the business people of Paris want free delivery they can obtain it by a little exertion on their part.

New Pastor Called.

Rev. Carey Morgan, of Richmond, Va., was unanimously called as pastor of the Christian Church in this city, Sunday morning.

Rev. Morgan will accept the position and his duties as pastor will commence on June 1. The church is to be congratulated on securing Rev. Morgan as its pastor, as he has a reputation as a preacher that is surpassed by few.

Prof. Sharon Complimented.

The Kentucky Educational Association, which met in Lexington last June, unanimously adopted a resolution asking the Board of Trustees of the State College to provide a "Summer School" for teachers. Acting in accordance with that resolution the Board ordered Prof. Roark to formulate plans at once. The teachers of Kentucky will, therefore, have a chance to do summer work practically free of cost, so far as instruction is concerned.

President Patterson and Prof. Roark in making up the faculty for this special work gave Supt. J. A. Sharon, of our city schools a very important place. Mr. Sharon will be in touch with teachers from all parts of the State in this work.

Accidentally Shot.

Bruce Adair, the son of A. C. Adair, while cleaning a rudely constructed pistol of his own make, accidentally shot it in the stomach, Sunday, the bullet ranging to the left and lodging near the hip. The wound is not considered dangerous and the little fellow was reported as doing very nicely yesterday. As soon as the accident occurred Bruce fearing he would freighten his mother, ran to J. S. Sweeney's residence across street and telephoned for a doctor and returned home and went to bed. Drs. Eads, Kenney, Fitzian, and Daugherty attended the case and the bullet was extracted which was a 22 caliber.

An Imported Case of Smallpox.

Noah Johnson, colored, was yesterday reported to Dr. Arthur Keller as having the smallpox. Dr. Keller found the negro in question and took him before Health Officer Evans and an examination proved that he had a well-developed case of smallpox.

A pest house was ordered built immediately, which was done, and the negro is now confined in it, the house is located on Houston Creek near Lylesville. Johnson arrived in Paris from Cincinnati where it is supposed he contracted the disease.

A Good Selection.

Mr. Newton Mitchell was Saturday selected by the Bourbon Home Telephone Co. to be its manager in this city, the position was offered to Mr. Mitchell and it was accepted. His duties as manager commenced yesterday.

The company could have made no better selection had it looked the town over as Mr. Mitchell is a very competent man and will make a popular and efficient manager. Mr. Mitchell will continue to be Superintendent of the Water Works as the two positions will not conflict.

THE KIDNAPPED MILLIONAIRES

A TALE OF WALL STREET AND THE TROPICS

CHAPTER XXIV—CONTINUED

Mr. Carmody laughed heartily. "So we have been on the mainland all the time, have we?" he said. "Well, that is pretty good. But we might as well have been on an island. A rabbit could not get to 'Morton's Bay,' unless he knew how to swim. Well, we had a good time if we were kidnapped. Here comes Mr. Kent. Mr. Vincent, and Mr. Pence. Sidney seems bound to stick to 'The Jumping Jupiter' until the last minute. I suppose they are taking the gold off." Mr. Carmody explained the discovery of the gold idols in the old ruined temple.

Mr. Carmody formally introduced L. Sylvester Vincent to Bernard Seymour. They shook hands.

"Glad to see you on board the yacht," said Mr. Seymour. "I did not catch the name exactly."

"Vincent—L. Sylvester Vincent, of Chicago," Mr. Vincent replied.

"Oh yes, you are the man I arrested in St. Louis last week."

Seymour then explained to the astounded Vincent the mistake that had been made, and all joined in the laugh which followed.

Mr. Carmody informed Capt. Baldwin that there was a quantity of valuable stores on board "The Jumping Jupiter." The naphtha launch was lowered and several sailors detrain to New York. Mr. Chalmers insisted that he have all the time necessary to prepare and forward his story. At 12:40 Chalmers filed his first news bulletin, and from that moment until ten o'clock at night a corps of telegraph operators was busy clicking the greatest "beat" ever recorded in the history of modern journalism.

It may be mentioned in passing that the receipt in New York of private telegrams from the missing millionaires was followed on the exchange by enormous buying of stocks. There were no rumors to account for the consequent rise in prices and for some time the market stoutly resisted the advance. Then quotations began to rise; slowly at first, but with increasing momentum. Something had happened! What was it?

The news of the Wall street boom came over the telephone to the news-paper office. Mr. Sharp, the acting editor of the Evening Record, was on the alert. In a fever of excitement he awaited the expected word from Mr. Chalmers or one of his assistants. The rival paper, the Evening Gazette, was out with an extra containing a rumor that the lost magnates had been located in South Africa. Mr. Sharp could stand it no longer. It was two o'clock and the market was soaring, but Wall street was as mystified as ever. For a week Sharp had held in type the most startling headlines ever designed in the office. He had been advised that the "Helen Carmody" had sailed from Havana and he knew her destination. It was the day for news from the abducted men. Sharp decided to "take a chance." The following was his first effort in headlines, which covered the front page, and crowded the title of the paper into small type in the upper left-hand corner:

THE EVENING RECORD.
New York, May 24.

RESCUED BY THE RECORD!!!

The New York Record Accomplishes the Greatest Achievement in the History of Journalism!!!

RESCUES THE MISSING MILLIONAIRES!!!

Palmer J. Morton, John M. Rockwell, Andrus Carmody, R. J. Kent, Simon Pence and Hiram Haven

Rescued from the Mexican Coast by an Expedition Flitted out by the New York Record!!!

Wall Street in a Flurry of Excitement!

The brief article which followed contained no information not stated in the headlines, and there was no date line at the head of it. Mr. Sharp was busy preparing a second and more circumstantial announcement when a telegram was received from Mr. Chalmers. A few minutes later the second Record extra was on the street. It read:

Vera Cruz, Mexico, May 16.—The expedition in charge of William Chalmers, managing editor of the New York Record, has effected the rescue of Palmer J. Morton, John M. Rockwell, Andrus Carmody, R. J. Kent, Simon Pence, Hiram Haven, Sidney Hammond and L. Sylvester Vincent. The kidnapping of these distinguished financiers is the most sensational crime in history. On the evening of May 1, seven of these men were lured on board the steam yacht "Shark," owned by Walter B. Hestor, the famous amateur newspaper correspondent. Hestor planned the crime and executed it with the cunning of a maniac. He invited Messrs. Morton, Kent, Rockwell, Carmody, Haven and Pence to join him at a dinner on board the "Shark," at which time an important business matter was to be discussed. Mr. Sidney Hammond was invited as legal counsel for Mr. Hestor. L. Sylvester Vincent was present to discuss another business matter with Mr. Carmody. Once out in the Atlantic, Hestor refused to return his guests to New York. He permitted them to send ashore the letters which were received by their relatives, and then steamed south. He landed them on the coast of Mexico—on the sixth day—at a point south of Vera Cruz, on a spot which he stated was an island. Here Hestor had fitted up a bungalow on the edge of a lake, connected by a narrow inlet to the Gulf of Mexico. That night Hestor sailed away in the "Shark."

"By indefatigable effort, the New York Record traced this crime to Walter B. Hestor. Its detective force, under the charge of John Stevens, located the bungalow. Special credit is due to Bernard Seymour, the famous detective reporter of Chicago, who, by skill and strategy, which will be explained later, found the contractor who built the bungalow—John McIntyre, of Havana. On Tuesday, May 16, Miss Helen Carmody, the beautiful and accomplished daughter of Andrus Carmody, placed the steam yacht which bears her name at the disposal of the Record, and in company with her aunt, Mrs. Isabel White, sailed for Havana. William Chalmers, managing editor of the Record, was in charge of the expedition. At Havana, Bernard Seymour, John Stevens and Col. McIntyre were taken on board and the yacht proceeded to Vera Cruz. In the meantime the marooned men had not been idle. They had constructed a seaworthy boat and were out in the gulf, about 30 miles northeast of Vera Cruz, where they were picked up by the "Helen Carmody" and taken to Vera Cruz. They are in splendid health, and their sufferings have been mental rather than physical. They will leave to-night on the yacht for New Orleans, and from thence to New York by special train. The following signed statement is forwarded by request of the rescued men:

"To All Whom It May Concern: We desire to announce our safe return to civilization in good health and spirits. We are mindful of the mercies of an all-wise Providence, who has watched over us through many perils and difficulties. We take this opportunity to publicly acknowledge our thanks for the splendid services rendered on our behalf by the New York Record, to whose executive ability and foresight is due our rescue from the dangers of the sea, and our safe return to shore. Our gratitude is especially due to William Chalmers, Bernard Seymour and John Stevens. In our opinion, this forced detention was the act of an irresponsible individual and not a conspiracy for any rational purpose. Signed,

ANDRUS CARMODY,
PALMER J. MORTON,
JOHN M. ROCKWELL,
HIRAM HAVEN,
SIMON PENCE,
R. J. KENT,
SIDNEY HAMMOND,
L. SYLVESTER VINCENT.

Vera Cruz, May 24."

Late that memorable Wednesday night, the staunch steam yacht "Helen Carmody" left the lights of Vera Cruz twinkling in the distance, and started on her 900 mile journey to New Orleans. All were fatigued from the excitement and toil of the day, and it was late on Thursday morning when they met again around the breakfast table in the spacious dining cabin. It was a merry and a contented party. There were 14 around the board—just enough to escape the fatal 13—but Bernard Seymour, being superstitious, counted three times before he was satisfied. Miss Helen Carmody presided as hostess. Never did she look more charming.

Simon Pence came in for much ribaldry about his gold idols and images. There were many inquiries about "Socks," the monkey.

"There is no chance for you and Vincent to escape that freight bill now," said Mr. Kent. "Here are your idols on Mr. Carmody's yacht. He can impose an extra charge if he chooses."

"No, I will be liberal," said Mr. Carmody. "When we get to New York we will appraise their value, and Mr. Pence can draw his check for one-third of it. Then he and Vincent can make an equitable division and I will do the same."

Mr. Vincent consented with promptness to this arrangement. Mr. Pence sighed and said he would stand to his agreement. The gold appraised about $370,000, and Mr. Pence gave Mr. Carmody his check for $123,500. By general agreement this was deposited to Mr. Vincent's credit, making his total share in excess of $227,000. He disposed of many of the idols as curios, and finally found himself in possession of a fortune of $250,000.

The "Helen Carmody" was favored with good weather, and on Friday evening the low shores of Louisiana crept up out of the gulf. To the east was a vessel which looked like a steam yacht, headed in a diagonal direction, as if to run across the course of the "Helen Carmody."

Mr. Carmody, Miss Helen and Mr. Chalmers were on the forward deck. Chalmers was the first to observe the yacht.

"There is a problem which sailors have to solve," he said. "That boat is headed across our course. Will she cross our bows, or will she go to the stern, assuming she keeps straight ahead? What do you say, Mr. Carmody?"

"She is a bit faster than this boat, I think," said Mr. Carmody. "In my judgment, she will pass at least half a mile ahead of us."

"I do not think so," said Miss Helen. "I am loyal to our yacht. We will beat her. Don't you think so, Mr. Chalmers?"

"I think one of us will have to change our course," replied Chalmers. At this moment Capt. Baldwin approached and called Chalmers aside.

"That boat to windward is the 'Shark,'" he said in a low tone. Chalmers took a quick look at the steadily approaching craft. "She is going to cut us off," continued Capt. Baldwin. "You had better pass the word among the men folks, and send the ladies below. I don't know what the intentions of that fellow Hestor are, but he is not going to interfere with the 'Helen Carmody' without a fight."

Chalmers returned to Mr. Carmody and Miss Helen.

"That yacht is the 'Shark,'" he said, quietly. "Capt. Baldwin has recognized her. He does not anticipate any trouble, but he suggests that Miss Carmody and Mrs. White go below for awhile."

"I do not wish to go below," said Miss Carmody, her eyes dancing with excitement. "I am not afraid. They cannot hurt us, can they, papa? Let me stay on deck. I want to see that awful Mr. Hestor and his captain."

"That will not do, Helen," said Mr. Carmody. "Capt. Baldwin is right. You join Mrs. White and remain in the saloon until I call you."

Miss Helen glanced appealingly at Mr. Chalmers, but received no encouragement in her meditated rebellion; so she obeyed and went to the lower deck.

Sidney Hammond came rushing forward.

"That is the 'Shark!'" he exclaimed. "Let us prepare for trouble. That maniac means mischief. Where are the rifles?"

Mr. Kent, Mr. Morton and Mr. Pence were enjoying an afternoon nap, but they were quickly aroused and informed of the situation. Simon Pence was in an agony of terror. His knees sank beneath him and he was too agitated to speak. Not so with Mr. Kent. His fighting blood was up in a minute.

"I will shoot that crazy dude full of holes if he or his men attempt to lay hands on me!" he exclaimed. He examined a repeating rifle which he examined carefully and calmly.

There were 20 rifles aboard the yacht. In anticipation of possible trouble Capt. Baldwin had purchased a dozen guns at Vera Cruz. These were distributed among the men and the crew. Sidney Hammond was put in charge of the defense—if one should be necessary. The weapons were placed within easy reach and they waited the approach of the "Shark," which was less than a mile away.

The faces of the men were a study. Hardly a word was spoken. Their faces were flushed with anger, rather than pale with fear. In plain sight was the yacht which had held them captive for days. They viewed the "Shark" as a pirate. Not a man doubted that Hestor was on board, and that he meant mischief. How trim and sleek the "Shark" looked as her prow cut the waves of the gulf! Her brass work glistened like gold in the afternoon sun. On her forward deck was a glint of polished steel. Mr. Kent recognized it.

"There is that rapid-fire gun," he said in an undertone.

Mr. Morton bowed, but said nothing.

Bernard Seymour examined his gun methodically. He ran his eye along the sights and studied the adjustment for distance. He spoke quietly to Sidney Hammond, received a nod of approval and went forward, taking a position near the bow of the boat.

Capt. Baldwin whistled a signal that he would go to starboard. There was no answer from the "Shark." Again the "Helen Carmody" blew a warning blast. In answer the "Shark" ran up a flag signal asking the "Helen Carmody" to "lay to." Capt. Baldwin hesitated a moment. He then gave the word to the engineer to go ahead full speed. They had been running half speed, so as to avoid any chance of a collision. Capt. Baldwin gave a blast to indicate that he would pass the "Shark" to leeward. The "Shark" slightly changed its course, and went slowly ahead parallel to its rival, but gradually drawing nearer.

As they came abreast the "Shark" was not 150 yards away. Those on the "Helen Carmody" could see Capt. Waters on the bridge. The crew was grouped on the forward deck.

A tall, slender figure in yachting uniform suddenly appeared by the side of Capt. Waters. Sidney instantly recognized Walter B. Hestor, who raised a megaphone. His voice sounded sharp and clear.

"Stand by; I wish to come aboard!" he shouted.

"Is the 'Shark' in distress?" was the reply of Capt. Baldwin.

"She is not!" shouted Hestor.

The two yachts were so close it was possible to converse without a megaphone.

"Stand off!" shouted Capt. Baldwin. "Stand off! You cannot come aboard. This is a private yacht, bound for New Orleans. Stand off, or I will run you down!"

"Hello, there, Mr. Rockwell!" shouted Hestor, lifting his cap and bowing profoundly. "Did you have a good time? How are you, Mr. Morton? You are so tanned I scarcely recognize you. How do you do, Mr. Kent? Hestor seems to have agreed with you! Hello, Sidney! Kindly tell your friends, Sidney, that I am going to cut you off."

"I do not think so," said Miss Helen. "I am loyal to our yacht. We will beat her. Don't you think so, Mr. Chalmers?"

"I think one of us will have to change our course," replied Chalmers. At this moment Capt. Baldwin approached and called Chalmers aside.

Chalmers took a quick look at the steadily approaching craft.

Beckham Opens Campaign.

Gov. Beckham opened his campaign yesterday at Owensboro with a hot speech, he goes after Col. J. H. Hendricks in a caustic and sensational fashion. He declares there is no question of his eligibility and scouts charges of machine dominations.

THAT new Chicago woman's paper is to have a column called "Man Lovely." We knew it all the time, but dislike very much to have it thrown up to us.

THE Brooklyn Judge was right when he sentenced a woman to jail for swearing. This thing of women infringing on men's prerogatives ought to be stopped.

BUFFALO has organized an anti-goo-goo society; it is beginning to look as though the Burdick scandal will turn out to be a good thing for New York society after all.

A PENNSYLVANIA widow has just cut her third set of teeth, which but again emphasizes the fact that it is simply impossible to cancel the widow or make her "go away back."

It is announced that the Western Union Telegraph Company's new manager was once a messenger boy, but it is hard to believe that any messenger boy ever got that sort of move on himself.

THE proposed trip of Gov. Beckham, his staff and several hundred members of the State Guard to the dedicatory ceremonies of the World's Fair at St. Louis, April 30, has been abandoned. The lack of funds to pay the expenses of the soldiers and the rivalry between the various companies for the honor of making the trip are the causes assigned for the Governor's action.

EDITOR NEWS: Saloons run in a local option precinct are in violation of the law. There is now being run in Claysville, a negro suburb of this city, a joint by two negroes, on as big a scale as any saloon run in our city that pays a license of $150 to the county for the privilege. At the last session of the Grand Jury this place was indicted, and a fine of $50 was imposed, which was a saving of $100 had they paid license. At the same term of court a negro was fined $50 and given ten days in jail for delivering a quart of whisky in Clintonville which is in the same precinct as Claysville.

This joint in Claysville is run in the building that has a very bad reputation among the law abiding citizens of this city. It was formerly run by Green Jackson who served a term in the penitentiary for stealing a barrel of whisky from a car on the L. & N. railroad. It was then opened and run by Gus Thomas, who skipped out after some stolen hogs were found in his possession.

Thomas ran a notorious joint, but it was no worse, if as bad, as the one the present occupants of the building are running. Crowds of negroes congregate there every night and make the night hideous with their wild carousals. Especially is this true of Saturday night, when the revels are kept up through the entire night and well into Sunday morning. As a consequence it is a common sight for church goers on Sunday morning to see half a dozen or so drunken negroes on the street, and the saloon-keeper who pays a license of $425 a year, and conducts an orderly and lawful place, gets the benefit of it. The county officials should break up this joint and while they are at it, they might investigate one run in the negro settlement of Ruckerville.

A FEW FACTS!

Longfellow could take a worthless sheet of paper, write a poem on it and make it worth $5,000.

J. P. Morgan can write a few words on a piece of paper and make it worth $1,000,000.

A mechanic can take a pound of steel and work it into watch springs, and make it worth $500.

We can write a check for $1,000,000 and it would not be worth a dime.

Your wife can buy a coat worth $10 but prefers one that cost $50.

There may be merchants who will tell you that they have better stock than we have.

We have a good stock of all kinds of lumber that we are willing to sell at a reasonable profit.

HOW TO SHIP LAMBS.

It Pays Well to Prepare the Creases with Neatness, Each Placed on a Stretcher.

Winter lambs for market should weigh not less than 45 pounds alive, and be fat. This condition is determined somewhat accurately by feeling the brisket and the tail near the body. A high degree of fatness is more important than weight, as they sell by the carcass, rather than by weight. The weight of two lambs being the same, the younger one will sell higher. The evidences of age are the fleece and the degree of ossification in the bones. Most lambs are marketed between the ages of ten and 16 weeks, a few as young as eight weeks. The market for them extends from Christmas to Easter, according to the Ohio Farmer correspondent, who further says:

To prepare a dressed lamb for shipment send about each lamb a square yard of clean, new muslin, as shown in the cut. We have shipped in various ways, and by both express and refrigerator freight. We now place each lamb on a stretcher, as shown in the second figure, and then wrap in burlap, which we get from the furniture dealers. We tried shipping in crates, but the crates would get crushed.

The diagram is a slight modification in form from the stretcher shown with a lamb on it. The side pieces should be about two inches wide and a half-inch thick, and made of light, strong timber, such as poplar, basswood or elm. The ten-inch cross-piece should be one and a half inch square; A is a ten-penny nail driven through this piece diagonally, pointing toward the short projecting ends of the side pieces. This is to hold the lamb's neck in position, as it is forced down upon it. Press the front legs down upon the neck and hold there with a twine around the stretcher. Loop short pieces of twine about the hind legs above the hocks and draw tightly, fastening at B. The legs should be cut off below the knee and hock.

Effective Bath for Swine.

A breeder thus tells how he prepared a bath for swine: "Some years ago we tried an experiment by making a shallow bath, four feet wide and ten feet long, of planks, with sides eight inches high. This, being bedded in puddled clay, was easily made watertight. The whole thing did not cost more than three hours' labor. Water was pumped from a stock well near by and run into this bath by a spout. Gravel was placed some inches deep around the bath to prevent mud. The water was drawn off and the bath refilled every day. The pigs did not require any teaching. We have seen seven pigs in it at once, and the others trying to root them out so they could get possession."

Dry Quarters for Horses.

In the days of muddy yards it takes surprisingly short time for even a few horses or cattle to tramp a moderate sized lot into a genuine quagmire, and it is a positive shame to ask horses (or cattle, either, for that matter) to lie down and rest in such disgraceful quarters. At that, however, it does not much matter how much asking is done, the horses will not lie down. Instead, they will hang around the driest spots in the yard, where the mud is least deep and chew and gnaw all night. They keep awake, and must have something to do, so they get into one of the worst and most annoying habits that ever cursed a horse, young or old—Midland Farmer.

Papering Hen House Walls.

It will cost but little to paper the outer walls of a poultry house with waterproof paper. It is better to place the paper on the outside, as it then protects the boards from becoming wet. One plan, however, is to strip the boards on the outside and paper the house on the inside. This can be done with any ordinary paper—wrapping paper being excellent—two thicknesses being applied, and it can be removed in summer, as it will then afford a harboring place for lice. The better plan is to use waterproof paper, which if painted will last for years.

Expert Pickling of Poultry.

Some of the expert picklers of poultry can take the feathers off the fowl as quickly as to astonish one who does not understand the operation. It is done by dipping each carcass in cold water and allowing it to drip. Finely pulverized resin is then dusted over and among the feathers, which causes the feathers to stick to the hands, even the pin feathers coming out with but little difficulty. Use the common crude resin, about one-half teaspoonful for each fowl.—Farm and Fire-side.

POSTURES OF THE FEET

Well-Bred Girls of To-Day Seem to Lack Training in This Important Particular.

"Why in the name of the graces are the girls of to-day not better trained in regard to the disposition of their feet?" said a masculine critic recently, reports the New York Tribune. "Especially," he continued, "as it seems quite permissible now adays to show foot and ankle with perfect freedom. In olden days young women were taught to sit with their pretty feet daintily crossed before them—a position which can never be awkward—but now the postures assumed by our society maidens are ungainly in the extreme. 'Well bred, charming girls to the knees,' I heard some one comment last summer, at a function where short skirts were worn; but below the knees—rough peasants. Did you ever see such positions? And I looked and marveled. Feet widely separated and planted flatly and heavily on the floor was one favorite position, another was tucking each foot around the legs of the chair. Several girls I saw sitting with feet turned in—what is called pigeon-toed fashion—and feet apart, also giving the widespread awkward look to the knees. Taking them one and all, everyone's posture was liable to criticism, and I cannot understand why such conspicuous faults should go uncriticized and uncorrected."

SILK HATS IN JAPAN.

Some Queer Specimens Are Worn by Men Who Affect European Fashions.

The Japan Weekly Advertiser has a few words to say about the aping of western customs by the Japanese, and takes for its text the foreign clothes seen on citizens of the flowing empire. It says:

"Men of fair status are frequently to be seen wearing silk hats of ante-diluvian pattern, with ordinary native costume down to geta and zori.

"As for the hats, where the blocks come from is a mystery, but the fact remains that a Bowery or Whitechapel tough would be ashamed to go abroad in some of the abortions masquerading as 'bowdiers' and 'toppers,' which are as common as per-simmons in Japan.

"Here is a case where the natives cannot excuse themselves on the ground that they have no model to go by. A glance at the first foreigner should be sufficient to teach them that a hard hat worn over the ears, and measuring scarcely more than two inches in height from the brim to the crown, is not a fashionable adjunct of European costume in the twentieth century, though it might have been so 30 years ago."

The wearing of a silk hat with a kimono is, says the Advertiser, "the outward and visible sign of a certain intellectual inaptitude."

AMERICAN SHOE INDUSTRY.

The Output of Footwear in This Country Is Something Enormous.

The books, shoes and slippers made by machinery in the United States every year would provide a pair of some kind for more than one-seventh of the inhabitants of the earth. If they were arranged by pairs, heels and toes touching, they would make a belt that would encircle the globe, with enough to spare to stretch across the North American continent from New York to San Francisco. Placed singly, heel and toe, they would go around the world two and a half times. If placed on the tracks of our great trunk railroads, the rights on one rail and the lefts on the other, they would cover the iron roads from the Atlantic to the Pacific of all the continental lines that now cross our country, says a shoe journal.

The hides and skins used to form this immense quantity of shoes come from all over the world, but chiefly from the East Indies, South America and Europe, and if they were sewed together in one sheet they would make a tent large enough to cover Manhattan island.

TALL MEN ARE FREAKS.

Learned Authority Upon Giants Says They Have Small Brain Cavities.

Prof. Cunningham, who has been appointed to succeed and serve under his old teacher, Sir William Turner, in the chair of anatomy in the University of Edinburgh, is the greatest authority upon giants, says a London paper. He is at present occupied in elaborating the proofs of his belief that a giant is a morbid phenomenon. A man or woman who is more than six feet five inches, or, at the outside, six feet six inches, cannot be regarded as merely abnormal, the professor thinks. He has shown that the mental characteristics of giants—easy good nature, sloth and poor intelligence—are those shown by victims of a rare disease of overgrowth called acromegaly. This is due to enlargement of an appendage of the brain, and Prof. Cunningham has personally examined every giant skeleton in the British and continental museums, and found that the little cavity in the skull corresponding to this part of the brain is enlarged in all of them.
